

STATE-OF-THE-ART PERINATAL CARE DURING THE COVID-19 PANDEMIC

VIRTUAL CONFERENCE MARCH 26, 2021 8AM-4:30PM

IDPH Administrative Perinatal Center
University of Illinois at Chicago

This special event is for doctors, nurses, residents, fellows, nurse midwives, neonatal nurse practitioners & lactation specialists who wish to learn, share ideas and gain tactical solutions to some of today's COVID related healthcare challenges. Don't miss this virtual learning opportunity and the sessions listed on page 2!

After this event, participants should be able to

- Appraise how evidence has driven neonatal and perinatal practice change in the pandemic.
- Describe three things your hospital could do to alleviate neonatal and perinatal health disparities.
- Reflect on the ethics of resource allocation across the lifespan in an emergency.
- Apply current guidance on vaccinating pregnant women and children against COVID-19.

Purpose

To provide updated information on the rapidly evolving knowledge base about COVID-19 in the perinatal period. Participants will be better equipped to follow current guidance for care and vaccination of pregnant women and newborns.
